OBITUARY

Estelle Emma Phillips Walters, daughter of George and Cassie Phillips, was born in Union County, O., Feb. 6, 1859 and departed this life Wednesday morning, May 13, 1936. She was married to Mr. Floyd Walters April 15, 1927. Every one who knew Mrs. Walters knew her but to love her. She carried sunshine everywhere and sympathy always. No cloud was dark enough to shut out the sunshine of her radiant personality and no burden heavy enough to embitter her sympathy. How fortunate indeed to be the happy possessor of such a sunny temper. Others may cultivate the same with painstaking and care, but to her it seemed to be nature's heavenly gift.

She was a member of Wesley Methodist Episcopal church and deeply interested both in church and Sunday School. She was an interested listener in every service, deeply religious, a regular and devout attendant. Her sudden departure is a distinct shock to the entire community. She leaves her husband to mourn for her and also four brothers and four sisters: Pearl Phillips, Columbus; Bert Phillips, Dealer; Truman Phillips and Eugene Phillips, Marion; Mrs. L. B. Verigan, Mrs. Ivan Spire, Marion; Mrs. James Doherty, Union, O.; Mrs. G. C. Holcomb, Randolph.

OBITUARY

Marlin Luther Kahl was born in Fredericktown, O., October 3rd, 1871, and passed away at his home in Agoston, O., May 10th, 1936. His parents were J. S. and Elizabeth, Vickers Kahl, his father being a minister and preceding elder of the Methodist church. On June 10th, 1890, he was united in marriage with Miss Emma C. McAllister of Marysville, O. To the union were born four children, three of whom are living, Loren H. Kahl and Mrs. Mary Anna Stafford of Marion, O., and Mrs. Chloe Ham partner of Prospect, O. John McAllister Kahl preceded his father in death September 20th, 1921. Three grandchildren also remain, Elizabeth and Donald Hamberger and George Martin Kahl. Mr. Kahl was postmaster at Ostrander, O., for 18 years and for the past 14 years has conducted a hardware store in Agoston. He was a member of the Methodist church in Warrensburg, O. Funeral services were held at the home May 21st, conducted by Rev. Howard of Marion, assisted by Rev. M. J. Platts of Agoston. Interment was made in Oakdale Cemetery at Marysville.

RECEIVES SHOCK

Factory Electrician in Hospital Following Accident

Willard Newell, 392 Evans rd., an electrician at the Alloy Cast Steel Co., was rendered unconscious for a brief period about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a screw driver he was holding became connected with a live wire on an electric switchboard at the plant.

He was revived a short time after the men he was working with had shut off the current.

Newell was attempting to correct a short circuit on the switch when the accident happened.

He was taken to City hospital in the M. H. Gunder ambulance. Report from the hospital today said that his condition is not serious.

O. S. U. Seniors Want Exercises in Stadium

Marion Star Bureau Ohio State University
COLUMBUS, May 5—Just where the seniors of Ohio state university will hear their traditional commencement address and receive their sheepskins this June has become a matter of dispute at the university.
In keeping with the custom of several years standing, university officials have planned to hold the annual June ceremonies at the Coliseum, a huge pavilion at the Ohio state fair-ground in western part of the home games of the Buckeye basketball team are played.
In spite of the fact that it has not created much discussion in the previous graduating classes, no seniors have taken a stand directly against using the Coliseum this year and are advocating the use of the Stadium.
"The beauty and dignity of the Stadium far outweigh its advantages that the Coliseum might have," one of the 4000 seniors stated at a class meeting recently. "Members of the senior class would much prefer a ducking to having their graduation held in a cow barn."

The ceremonies were held at the Stadium last year but the program was threatened throughout by rain. For that reason, officials decided to again hold the graduation at the Coliseum.
Circulate as much truth and as few words as possible.

Will Tours Washington

Rogers Leaves Philadelphia for Capital To Find Excitement That Does Not Exist; Glad That Marines Are Back Home

BY WILL ROGERS

Looking for the Diet in Washington

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers and in addition you have to do a little outside checking or you would know much. I was in Philadelphia for a couple of weeks and I went so far as to decide to spend Sunday there. I stood at the door at two o'clock in the afternoon when I discovered that I was the only one there. I called up the Airport and asked Bob Hewitt a splendid pilot if he had anything that would get me out of this isolation. He says where do you want to go. I says well let's go to Washington. He says Well there is not much doing in Washington on Sunday either. I told him I knew that outwardly Washington is pretty dead on Sunday but inside the homes there was many a conference and "huddle" and deep plans against the taxpayer.

So it was a beautiful afternoon and we flew down to Washington in about an hour and a quarter. I landed at Bolling field. Just missed quite a sight as there was 15 big Martin Bombers had come out of there on their way to Dayton Ohio for a big war maneuvers they held there. Met an old Marine pilot there that said I got it in for you. When we were fighting down in Nicaragua you wrote a piece about us going out and slitting the Nicaraguans from our planes and they were hitting us back by throwing sticks and rocks. Say listen Comedian I wish you had been in one of those planes some time. We have come in with more machine gun bullets than you ever took shots about. Look at that. You think those guys didn't have modern guns and listen there was no place to find either.

It Makes Little Difference
Well I guess the boys was about right at that. Course we didn't like the idea of us fighting them with planes and them have to defend themselves with nothing but what we thought was lean shooters. But it was the system that sent them there that most of us was hollering, and not the boys who really had to do the fighting. You know you can be killed just as dead in an unqualified war as you can in one protecting your own home. We lost lots of men down there for what? To make Nicaragua clean as pure as Chicago. We are always going out to catch some native bunch like Villa or Sandino and if we catch him we wouldn't have anything to do with him. After a Senate investigation he would wind up in a van. You can't go back in those native mountains and jungles and catch one lone man.

Somebody killed Arnold Rothstein in a big hotel in the heart of New York and we can't even catch him so what's the use sucking the Marines on somebody away off in those bush League Countries, where if we lose O.K. Marine we see lower more than if we had caught old Sandino and even sentenced him our Senate.

Looking for a War
So I am glad for once in our lives we got our Marines back home. I know they are laying off waiting for some war somewhere. There is one in Afghanistan, or Alfalfa, or some point away over near Turkey. But we got nobody in Washington that knows where it is, so the Marines will have to stay till Hoover tells the war department where this place is.

Well before I forget it, you must fly over Washington. Its beautiful. Few right down over where the old "Mayflower" used to dock, in the days when we had a real Sailor in the White House. A man that knew how to take his recreation in a gentlemanly way with the old Chap and while he was on not with a pair of rubber boots and can full of worms. Went up to the Willard Hotel and asked me out a room picked up quite a bit of local scandal from the clerks who know more about what's going on down there than anyone. Went out to a luncheon to see the McGowan. They got a thirteen year old boy Jack named after their race horse and six big boys grown men. I said to the little girl I said about six. She must have 15 dogs no two any where near alike. All sizes all colors all breeds. There is just six left equal in distributed among fifteen dogs. All following this kid. Went to Mrs. Longworth and made my 15th trip, but I tried to get some news out of Nick as to just what relief would be it out to the farmers. The just kinder smiled. He had been there a good many years and he had never seen the farmers go away with any thing yet. But he hoped they would this time. He seemed sorry that the tariff had been dragged in as he said that was just like arguing religion. No people of opposite beliefs ever agreed. Somebody asked him how long he thought this special term would last and he said "So the Chap but he is in more direct communication with God than I am."

Watched branches of Pan Am and said it would die in his hall of horrors. Saw the two branches of fun and amusement operate the next day. Some guy in Nicks fun factory was trying to make the "Star Spangled Banner" the National Anthem. I couldn't see where the farmers would get much nourishment out of that. So I went over to the Senate the Mack Bennett end of our Legislative Body. Brookhurst of Iowa was supposed to denounce Fess of Ohio. Well as everybody knew there was plenty of subject material for him to work on why the place was packed. Well in the meantime Mr. Hoover had got on in the White House and fed on the day before and you find a Senator and he is just like an old stuffed house cat he is no good for practical denunciation. You get in hungry to make em work good in the meantime Alice and Mrs. Gans happened to come up on the same elevator and into the Senate Gallery and sat down together. Well Farm Relief National Anthem relief. Hoover and his Sugar relief, it all vanished. If Mabel Millerbrandt had been caught going into Texas Guinnans with Bishop Canboult it wouldn't have caused any more of a commotion. What a Senator does is of no interest in Washington for he will do the same thing over again tomorrow. But what Alice does at anytime is news to the world. If I'm right had I been caught at Mabel it couldn't have been more front page. So I happened to hit the old Aquarium at 4:30 when the fish weren't doing a bit but the visitors were a bit slow.

MONDAY NIGHT PROGRAM

Auto Speedway Classic

VAUGHN DE LEATH GRAHAM MCNAMEE FRANKLIN BAUR
"CONTRALTO" "THE VOICE OF FIRESTONE"

Graham McNamee, Franklin Baur and Vaughn De Leath will draw the coming world's outstanding racing event—the 500 mile Indianapolis Speedway classic.

The dramatized description of the race will be broadcast just as though the microphones were set up at the track. The musical part of the program will be supplied by Mr. Baur and Mrs. De Leath while McNamee will do the announcing. The program will be heard during the Voice of Firestone hour over the WFAP network at 7 o'clock Monday night.

BY MAG. ROY
TWENTY SIX years of Sousa music will be reviewed at 8 o'clock Monday night when the famous march king will present a program over the WFAP network of the NBC system.

Many of the achievements of Sousa's colorful life were recorded during the 26 years that will be reviewed in the concert program. Some of his great marches were composed during that time. Also it was in this period during the World War—that Sousa gave his most spectacular demonstration of his band organizing ability.

Merle Alcock the Missouri town controller of the Metropolitan Opera Company will be the guest soloist.

ITALIAN OPERA TO HAVE WORLD PREMIERE
The first world premiere is that of a grand opera by a modern Italian composer will be heard over the WFAP network at 10 o'clock Monday night.

SOPRANO TENOR ON PROGRAM
CAROLINE ANDREWS, coloratura soprano and Glenn Thurn, tenor will be the featured artists of the National Grand Opera and Concert Opera program to be heard over the WFAP network at 10 o'clock Monday night.

REFRESHING MUSICAL FAVORITES ON AIR
Gen. John I. Pershing will be heard during the Edison program over the WFAP network at 8 o'clock Monday night.

Say It Yourself—By Telephone

WHEN you send a message by telephone, you send your own voice, your own personality.

That's why many people today call their friends frequently to tell them or to learn the latest family news—in other words, to pay a visit. No matter how far away they may be, you can reach them in a minute or so if they have a telephone, and talk to them as easily as if they were in the same room with you. The best part of such visits is that they can be enjoyed from your own home.

For calls in emergency, to place orders, or for any other family business, you also can use the out-of-town service to advantage. You not only are delivering the message personally, but you get an immediate reply.

The cost is surprisingly small. Calling by number, you can talk for three minutes during the day to a point 100 miles away for 70 cents, or 200 miles for $1.15.

Do not "Put it off any longer. Order your installation today and get your name in the directory now being prepared.

"Cook county pays for one-half and gets one-twenty-fifth of the state's highways," reads a box in the Chicago Tribune. It's just possible, however, that Cook county makes fairly good use of the other twenty-four twenty-fifths, which should be considered.

Police Commissioner Whalen has broken into the public spotlight again by ordering the police of New York to keep out of speakases. If the police are able to know such places as they are warned to avoid as speakases, why should they not close them? Mr. Whalen's administration as commissioner is becoming almost as humorous as little Jimmy Walker's administration as mayor.

Texas Gulshan has lost her suit to collect $25,000 for the use of her name by a Pacific coast vaudeville house, which advertised that she would appear for a week, which she was unable to do after the first day owing to illness. There's no getting away from the view that Texas has a mighty exalted appreciation of the worth of her name.

Regardless of the controversy between the other cities of the Great Lakes and Chicago regarding the withdrawal of lake water by the Windy City, it's lucky for the most of the lake cities that the lake levels weren't any higher when the spring storms set in. As it was, many of the smaller community centers suffered great damage and a few of them narrowly escaped destruction.

Our Possessions Widely Scattered.

We believe it is safe to say that we of America are inclined to think of our country as a great, compact body of land, with a big territory off in the extreme northwestern part of the country and some island possessions.

Well, the main land is a big and compact domain and we have a great territory in Alaska, far greater in size than generally imagined. And we also have some islands.
 An matter of fact we have something like 9,000 of them, and they sprinkle the seas of both hemispheres for a distance of 16,000 miles from St. John, to the Virgin Islands, to Balabac Island, on the outskirts of the Philippines.

A recent bulletin of the National Geographic society refers to the 5,000 islands of the Philippines as the "Milky Way of the United States island constellations." This group embraces Luzon, which is just about the area of our own state, down to little islets no more than one-tenth of a square mile in area. In fact, something like 7,000 of the Philippines are so small and considered of so little importance to us that they have not even been named.

Then there are the Aleutians swinging from Alaska toward the coast of Asia. Even the United States Geodetic survey doesn't pretend to know how many there are of them.
 Another group is along the Alaskan panhandle.
 Between them and the mainland is what is known as the "Inland" passage through which steamers thread their way to and from Alaska protected by them from heavy seas and seas. Between these two island groups are hundreds of other islands off the Alaskan coast.

Then we have the Hawaiian Islands. To the most of us they are a few small islands bunched in the Mid-Pacific. They are not large, as a matter of fact; none of them. The total area of the entire group is only about that of the combined areas of Connecticut and Rhode Island, but they are spread over a wide expanse of sea—an expanse from east to west as great as the extreme width of the United States and as far north and south as the distance from the Canadian border to the west of the Great Lake district to the extreme southern tip of Texas. Wake Island, an uninhabited atoll of the Hawaiian group with an elevation of only eighteen feet above the sea, is 3,000 miles distant from the island of Hawaii.

But these are not all. We have island possessions in the West Indies, in addition to Porto Rico and the Virgin; quite a number of them in the western Caribbean in fact, and many more. There are also something like seventy guano islands belonging to us scattered over the Pacific and we also have islands in the Samoan group.

As a matter of fact, our possessions are not compactly grouped, but rather decidedly far flung, and very possibly we would be far better off were we to let go of seven or eight thousand of them, were the circumstances such that we could do so in honor.

Saner Thinking May Save It.

The United States senate is up in the air again, the cause of the present ascension being the publication by the papers of one of the press associations of what was held out to be the "secret" roll call on the confirmation of former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, as judge of the federal court of customs appeals. The sergeant-at-arms has been ordered to exclude all newspaper men from the floor of the senate, and the senate rules committee has ordered the chief of the capitol staff of the association to appear next Monday and reveal who gave out the roll call and other information concerning the secret Lenroot session. "If he refuses to divulge the source of information," says a Washington wire, "he will face imprisonment for contempt of the senate. It was indicated."

Upon what grounds this particular newspaper man can be cited to appear before the senate or its rules committee, under an information that he will be imprisoned for contempt of the senate should he refuse to reveal the source of his information is a mystery. It's more than that; it's a decided outrage. He may feel contempt for the senate, but he has broken neither a senate order nor a senate rule, and it can not be said that he violated newspaper ethics by using the roll call. He was given the story in good faith, and there is absolutely nothing to show that he violated faith in uttering it.
 It is agreed that there has not been, on his part, any violation of any senate rule. Of course, a little thing like that would not seriously bother the senate in some cases, for it could easily frame an ex post facto rule to apply to his case, just as it has framed ex post facto laws to catch others after whom it has gone hunting.

But if it should attempt anything of the kind in the case of this newspaper man, it would make itself to appear in an even more ridiculous light, if possible, than it already does. Penning him for refusing to betray the one of its members or its employees who committed the transgression against senatorial dignity, or whatever it may be that has been violated, would arouse resentment throughout the land against a body which today commands less esteem and is made the target of more criticism than ever before in its history as a legislative body.

The senate in recent years has been charged, with good reason, with trying to usurp the powers of the executive branch of the government; it has been charged by members of the house with trying to usurp the powers of that body; it has been charged with trying to usurp the powers of the judicial branch of the government, and has endeavored to take from it its powers. For twenty years it has stood in the way of reapportionment, and thus defied the basic law of the land, doing more in this respect to engender disrespect for law than any other body in the country.

The calm judgment of the saner thinkers among its membership will probably stop it from further infringing upon the rights and liberties of the public by taking the action indicated as possible in the event that this news association man does not reveal the source of his information regarding the Lenroot roll call.

To overcome the shortage of meats in Moscow and other Russian cities, the soviet government is urging the raising of rabbits.

As the result of his purchase of properties in the heart of New York City to make a proper setting for the new Metropolitan opera-house, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is said to have become the landlord of many flourishing speakases on which the tenor ran for yet two years. Fortunately, Mr.
 Rockefeller's life has been such that the situation, embarrassing as it may be, will not be misunderstood by the public. It pays to have a reputation such as the younger Rockefeller enjoys.

A few nights since, the students of the university in Sydney, New South Wales, broke up a theatrical performance by pelling the stage people with rotten fruit, hawled down the vice chancellor of the university who sought to quiet them and then started to parade the streets, despoiling the constabulary to the World War dead of the wreaths about its base. Again, the question: "Does higher education pay?"

Edward W. Browning has disposed of $3,000,000 worth of his New York City real estate holdings, and plans to auction off $6,000,000 worth of real estate more, with the idea of establishing a Browning foundation to operate and maintain playgrounds for children and provide toys and play devices for children patients in hospitals. Under ordinary conditions he should be able to get a lot more satisfaction out of that than would be his in operating a home for gold diggers.

A birdie who held up the owner of a knitting mill at Janesville, Wisconsin, at 9:35 in the morning, was captured in Beloit about noon, taken back to Janesville and sentenced at 2:35 in the afternoon of the same day to from five to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. That's what we call real service on the part of a court.

Following the example of the French line, the three chief Italian shipping lines will hereafter bar sightseers and limit permission to board their vessels on sailing nights to the relatives and friends of passengers, to whom passes will be issued upon request of passengers on application at the offices of the lines. When that rule is put into force by all the lines, as it is liable to be in view of the action of the French and Italian lines, the crowding and confusion which have marked the start of most ocean voyages out of New York recently will be obviated and the pleasure of ocean travel will be greatly enhanced.

Health Depends on Oxygen.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

You read in the paper every day about the need of fresh air and exercise. You are told they must be had if you would enjoy perfect health.

These are both essential to be sure. But they are not in themselves sufficient.

Let me explain: Fresh air without proper breathing is of little value. So it is with exercise. It must be the right kind of exercise, taken under appropriate conditions. Otherwise it will fail to accomplish its purpose. Today I want to talk about breathing—what it does for the body.

No matter how much rest you get, you can not be well nourished unless you breathe correctly.

Do you believe that the breathing capacity bears any important relationship to goodness of character? This surely is surprising, if true.

My friend, Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance company, studied 1,000 chest measurements to show the connection between breathing and delinquency in women.

Dr. Hoffman is a conservative man and would be the last to make a positive conclusion in a matter of this sort. What he found is very interesting.

The investigations show that the breathing capacity of delinquents is distinctly less than in normal women. In women over thirty years of age, the delinquents have a chest expansion of three inches, as against four inches for normal women. Under thirty the normal women have an expansion of four and a half inches, at least a half inch more than the delinquents possess.

I am all the time preaching to you the importance of deep breathing. I have done this because of what it means to your physical well-being.
 I have not thought of its relationship to morals.

It is easy to see, however, there may be a lot in Dr. Hoffman's idea. Unless the brain is well irrigated with pure blood it can not operate as it should.

The purification of the body and the proper functioning of all the vital organs are dependent on the purity of the blood supply. The blood can not be rich and capable unless the lungs give it an abundance of oxygen.

It is reasonable to believe, then, that delinquency which depends on wrong operations of the mind or on wrong impulses due to perverted stimulation of certain organs, might well come from shallow breathing. To have the quantities of oxygen essential to normal blood supply and proper flow of nerve energy there must be the fullest use of the breathing machinery.

"The chest expansion is an index of the degree of lung development. If there is not free expansion there is no likelihood of obtaining the necessary oxygen. A healthy mind and a clear brain depend on an abundance of fresh air. You must take into your lungs an abundance of oxygen with every breath."

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES
 M. L. B. Q.—What can be done for pimples?

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally

 Address all inquiries to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in

Their Possible Fate
 There's probably something more than mere sentiment now back of what undoubtedly is a song out in an Iowa university—"I'd Die for Dear Old Des Moines." If they do much more rising, some of the students may have to make good.—

Dinner Stories.
 "Did you tell what was said in executive session?"
 "No," answered Senator Sorgbaum. "I can prove I was sound asleep, as usual, and did not hear a word."

Marie—"Is it true that Margaret has a secret sorrow?"
 Anna—"Why yes, hasn't she told you about it?"

"John," said teacher, "stand, facing north.
 Now what have you on your left hand?"
 "Chewing gum, teacher. I couldn't wash it off this morning."

"I think it's fine for you mothers to have so many activities, but I should think you would have to neglect your children."
 "Oh no. We employ a governess for that."

"What's your boy Josh doing now?"
 "Makin' the world set up an' listen," said Farmer Cornstossel, proudly.
 "A statesman?"
 "No. Radio announcer."

Editorial Opinion.

MOTORIST BEHAVIOR.

In connection with the educational campaign to teach pedestrians to obey the lights and crossing policemen it behooves the motorist to turn over a new leaf in his driving behavior as well.

The campaign for walkers, which is now under way and which, if the commissioners heed the petitions of organizations and the traffic bureau, will be followed by strict enforcement of the existing regulation relating to pedestrians, stresses again the fact that if motorists expect the recoaction of the walkers they must themselves set the pace.

There can be no possible fairness in expecting the much-harassed pedestrian to wait patiently for the green light before setting out across an intersection and then to be threatened by drivers who pass the painted white line or start up on the caution signal. Likewise there can be no logical argument for pedestrian control if right-turning drivers simply ignore those walking when they swing around the corner directly into the stream of pedestrians proceeding on the green light.

These practices, unfortunately, are prevalent in Washington today and no tendency can be expected in securing the good will and aid of the walker for the betterment of traffic conditions while they continue. Pedestrian control is in force in a good many cities of the country. It is not designed and has not shown itself to be a regulation to give the motorist a monopoly of the streets. On the contrary, motorist and pedestrian work in harmony for the protection of both and for the good of the majority. The motorist is given clear way on the green or go signal, while the walker, in return, is granted full reciprocal privileges.

There are many who argue that pedestrians should be free from regulation and that they should be permitted unrestricted use of the street because they are constantly in peril. In fact one functions writer to the Star inquired if a pedestrian death in the district should be considered "natural or accidental." The fact remains, however, that the streets of all large cities are becoming so congested that no one class of street user, while on the street, should be granted entire freedom.

Sidewalks are furnished for walkers and streets for fast-moving traffic. All street traffic is controlled and it logically follows that when the walker deserts the sidewalk for the street, he, too, should come under the general control. It is for his own protection and for the frictionless movement of traffic.

Naturally the responsibility for safety is greater upon the motorist than upon the walker. The former is driving a potentially dangerous vehicle, against which the latter is defenseless. Accordingly, the motorist must exercise extreme care.
 He must stop and "stay stopped" until the signal flashes green; he must not encroach upon pedestrian domain, and when he does encroach in making a right turn he must do so cautiously, slowly and with scrupulous regard for the fact that in that particular moment his rights are entirely subordinated to those of the pedestrian.

When this is done and when pedestrians come to the realization that the exigencies of present conditions demand that every street user be regulated, then the national capital will be a better place in which to live, walk and drive.—Washington Star.

AGAIN MACHADO.

General Machado Y. Morales again has been installed as president of Cuba, our sugary-sweet neighbor in the summer sea near to our shores.
 He went up to his nation's new $16,000,000 capital in Havana with the cheers of thousands of his countrymen, ringing in his ears.

Machado begins his second term, rising from humble life, after a strenuous and illustrious career as warrior and politician. He is a good friend of the United States. He has been to visit us. He seems popular with his people. He will serve for six years more, if nothing shall happen to him.

Machado is one of Cuba's outstanding leaders, both in military, business and social life. Like Calles, he is not much given to talk. He made no inaugural speech, having previously addressed the congress. He is for improvement, for economy and education. He brought down the price of sugar to its present low level. He has dedicated himself to his country and his people.

Cuba might have done a much worse thing than to continue Machado Y. Morales in office.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

And I will rebuke the deceiver for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for you shall be a delightome land, saith the Lord of hosts.—Malachi 3:11, 12.

Prayer.—O God of mercy, God of might, in love and pity infinite, teach us, as ever in Thy sight to live our life to Thee.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, May 25—Many of the great characters in a small town are those who seem to have been troubled by chronic joyridity. Yet in New York humanity is often scored by the same penury. The attitude becomes sneering. They mount the soap box and snarl.

I have no particular reverence for wealth, but the most considerate and agreeable people in the metropolis are frequently the very rich. They should, of course, be more tolerant and understanding. And there is nothing at all thrilling in being with the underdogs.

Yet there is something admirably sporting in making the best of it. Oddly enough in the metropolis the grouchiest folk are often those who depend largely for their well-hood upon the gratuities bestowed by the public their serve.

I refer especially to incivilities of waiters, hat checkers, taxicab drivers and even policemen. Not once was I ever snubbed by a high-salaried executive to whom I meant nothing, but innumerable times have I received discourtesy from those to whom I meant at least a tip.

As an assignment reporter in earlier days here any door bell pull at fine mansions or my card in elaborate executive offices were never slighted, but in more humble surroundings I have had doors slammed in my face when on the most inoffensive errands. Voice: Perhaps stealing a picture.

I have been rudely pushed off the curb on the Bowery, but never on Park avenue. The glitter of wealth in New York seems to make class consciousness more pronounced. One of the outstanding charms of the smaller city is in its lack of obsequiousness to riches.

In the metropolis one is always conscious of the shabby sleeve. In the one-ring town it means nothing whatever and may be worn by the leading banker as well as the lowliest occupant of a tin can shanty on the city dump.

A leading catch-and-throw dancer indulges each violent gymnastics in her nightly dances she is carried to her waiting car in a state of complete exhaustion. A neat press yarn, but the sort that inspires only an editorial yawn.

Many Broadway stage and cabaret clowns have press agents who try to exploit a deep meaning to their act. Behind the mimic's laugh is the broken heart and all that pille.
 Any number give a cock-eyed hilarity to a robust evening, but their "meaning" has no more significance than slapstick when on the bit spot. They are a little above the average hams doing their stuff and what an extraordinary lucky break they receive so much money for it!

Capital is being raised for a new experiment in the theater—a structure fashioned after the plans of the Viennese opera-houses and which will present only operettas of American composers. Otto Kahn, it is rumored, will pay the bill. One of these days they should put up a new opera-house or theater on some one else's check for a change.

Fashionable johnnies popping over from London the past few weeks feature pantaloons with a single and extraordinarily deep pleat.
 And the hat brim slipped way down in the back—like Mayor Walker off for Palm Beach —is also good cricket.

The passing of society's movie theater—the Plaza—in the "Fashionable Fifties" was an illustration of how tickling the ego of the rich paid. It was always crowded. The manager, with a tongue in his cheek, presented crase-you-Roger Flemingway films so buck tooth debilitates and their translucent-eared by friends could razz the players. This ballooned their feeling of snootiness and maintained a steady line at the box office.

Nothing is more annoying than the snobbery of the intelligentsia. The new rich in their striving are amusing and ofttimes pathetic. But for those with only a single and feeble talent or perhaps a papa with money to ape a superiority beyond their gifts is downright what.

Daily Proverb—"Among men some have their virtues concealed by wealth and some their vices by poverty."

Premier Mussolini has joined the war against short skirts being waged by the Roman Catholic press. Benito's courage seems to be absolutely without limit.

"Cook county pays for one-half and gets one-twenty-fifth of the state's highways," reads a box in the Chicago Tribune. It's just possible, however, that Cook county makes fairly good use of the other twenty-four twenty-fifths, which should be considered.

Police Commissioner Whelan has broken into the publicity spotlight again by ordering the police of New York to keep out of speak-easies. If the police are able to know such places as they are warned to avoid as speak-easies, why should they not close them? Mr. Whelan's administration as commissioner is becoming almost as humorous as little Jimmy Walker's administration as mayor.

Texas Gulman has lost her suit to collect $25,000 for the use of her name by a Pacific coast vaudeville house, which advertised that she would appear for a week, which she was unable to do after the first day owing to illness. There's no getting away from the view that Texas has a mighty exalted appreciation of the worth of her name.

Regardless of the controversy between the other cities of the Great Lakes and Chicago regarding the withdrawal of lake water by the Windy City, it's lucky for the most of the lake cities that the lake levels weren't any higher when the spring storms set in. As it was, many of the smaller community centers suffered great damage and a few of them narrowly escaped destruction.

Our Possessions Widely Scattered.

We believe it is safe to say that we of America are inclined to think of our country as a great, compact body of land, with a big territory off in the extreme northwestern part of the country and some island possessions.

Well, the main land is a big and compact domain and we have a great territory in Alaska, far greater in size than generally imagined. And we also have some islands. As a matter of fact we have something like 9,000 of them, and they sprinkle the seas of both hemispheres for a distance of 16,000 miles from St. John, in the Virgin Islands, to Rarotonga island, on the outskirts of the Philippines.

A recent bulletin of the National Geographic society refers to the 8,000 islands of the Philippines as the "Milky Way of the United States Island constellations." This group embraces Luzon, which is just about the area of our own state, down to little islands no more than one-tenth of a square mile in area. In fact, something like 7,000 of the Philippines are so small and considered of so little importance to us that they have not even been named.

Then there are the Aleutians swinging from Alaska toward the coast of Asia. Even the United States Geographic survey doesn't pretend to know how many there are of them. Another group is along the Alaskan panhandle. Between them and the mainland is what is known as the "Inland" passage through which steamers thread their way to and from Alaska protected by them from heavy gales and seas. Between these two island groups are hundreds of other islands off the Alaskan coast.

Then we have the Hawaiian Islands. To the most of us they are a few small islands bunched in the Mid-Pacific. They are not large, as a matter of fact; none of them. The total area of the entire group is only about the size of the combined areas of Connecticut and Rhode Island, but they are spread over a wide expanse of sea—an expanse from east to west as great as the extreme width of the United States and as far north and south as the distance from the Canadian border to the west of the Great Lakes district to the extreme southern tip of Texas. Wake Island, an uninhabited atoll of the Hawaiian group with an elevation of only eighteen feet above the sea, is 3,000 miles distant from the island of Hawaii.

But these are not all. We have island possessions in the West Indies, in addition to Porto Rico and the Virgin Islands; quite a number of them in the western Caribbean in fact, and many cays. There are also something like seventy guano islands belonging to us scattered over the Pacific and we also have islands in the Samoan group.

As a matter of fact, our possessions are not compactly grouped, but rather decidedly far flung, and very possibly we would be far better off were we to let go of seven or eight thousand of them, were the circumstances such that we could do so in honor.

Sane Thinking May Save It.

The United States senate is up in the air again, the cause of the present ascension being the publication by the papers of one of the press associations of what was held out to be the "secret" roll call on the confirmation of former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, as judge of the federal court of customs appeals. The newspaper-at-arms has been ordered to exclude all newspaper men from the floor of the senate, and the senate rules committee has ordered the chief of the capitol staff of the association to appear next Monday and reveal who gave out the roll call and other information concerning the secret Lenroot session. "If he refuses to divulge the source of information," says a Washington wire, "he will face imprisonment for contempt of the senate. It was indicated."

Upon what grounds this particular newspaper man can be asked to appear before the senate or its rules committee, under an indication that he will be imprisoned for contempt of the senate should he refuse to reveal the source of his information is a mystery. It's more than that; it's a decided outrage. He may feel contempt for the senate, but he has broken neither a senate order nor a senate rule, and it can not be said that he violated newspaper ethics by using the roll call. He was given the story in good faith, and there is absolutely nothing to show that he violated faith in uttering it. It is agreed that there has not been, on his part, any violation of any senate rule. Of course, a little thing like that would not seriously bother the senate in some cases, for it could easily frame an ex post facto rule to apply to its case, just as it has framed ex post facto laws to catch others after whom it has gone gunning.

But if it should attempt anything of the kind in the case of this newspaper man, it would make itself to appear in an even more ridiculous light, if possible, than it already does. Penalizing him for refusing to betray the one of its members or its employees who committed the transgression against senatorial dignity, or whatever it may be that has been violated, would arouse resentment throughout the land against a body which today commands less esteem and is made the target of more criticism than ever before in its history as a legislative body.

The senate in recent years has been charged, with good reason, with trying to usurp the powers of the executive branch of the government; it has been charged by members of the house with trying to usurp the powers of that body; it has been charged with trying to usurp the powers of the judicial branch of the government, and has endeavored to take from it its powers. For twenty years it has stood in the way of re-apportionment, and thus defied the basic law of the land, doing more in this respect to engender disrespect for law than any other body in the country.

The calm judgment of the sane thinkers among its membership will probably stop it from further infringing upon the rights and liberties of the public by taking the action indicated as possible in the event that this news association man does not reveal the source of his information regarding the Lenroot roll call.

As the result of his purchase of properties in the heart of New York City to make a proper setting for the new Metropolitan opera-house, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is said to have become the landlord of many flourishing speak-easies on which the money men run for yet two years. Fortunately, Mr. Rockefeller's life has been such that the situation, embarrassing as it may be, will not be misunderstood by the public. It pays to have a reputation such as the younger Rockefeller enjoys.

A few nights since the students of the university in Sydney, New South Wales, broke up a theatrical performance by pelting the stage people with rotten fruit, howled down the vice chancellor of the university who sought to quiet them and then started to parade the streets, despoiling the cenotaph to the World War dead of the wreaths about its base. Again, the question: "Does 'higher' education pay?"

Edward W. Browning has disposed of $5,000,000 worth of his New York City real estate holdings, and plans to auction off $6,000,000 worth of real estate more, with the idea of establishing a Browning foundation to operate and maintain playgrounds for children and provide toys and play devices for children patients in hospitals. Under ordinary conditions he should be able to get a lot more satisfaction out of that than would be his in operating a home for gold diggers.

A bindle who held up the owner of a knitting mill at Janesville, Wisconsin, at 9.55 in the morning, was captured in Beloit about noon, taken back to Janesville and sentenced at 3.55 in the afternoon of the same day to from five to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. That's what we call real service on the part of a court.

Following the example of the French line, the three chief Italian shipping lines will hereafter bar sightseers and limit permission to board their vessels on sailing nights to the relatives and friends of passengers, to whom passes will be issued upon request at passengers on application at the offices of the lines. When that rule is put into force by all the lines, as it is liable to be in view of the action of the French and Italian lines, the crowding and confusion which have marred the start of most ocean voyages out of New York recently will be abated and the pleasure of ocean travel will be greatly enhanced.

ANOTHER WAY TO DISCOURAGE TRADE.

Health Depends on Oxygen.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

You read in the paper every day about the need of fresh air and exercise. You are told they must be had if you would enjoy perfect health. These are both essential to be sure. But they are not in themselves sufficient.

Let me explain. Fresh air without proper breathing is of little value. So it is with exercise. It must be the right kind of exercise, taken under appropriate conditions. Otherwise it will fail to accomplish its purpose. Today I want to talk about breathing—what it does for the body. No matter how much you eat, you can not be well nourished unless you breathe correctly.

Do you believe that the breathing capacity has any important relationship to goodness of character? This surely is surprising, if true.

My friend, Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance company, studied 1,000 chest measurements to show the connection between breathing and delinquency in women. Dr. Hoffman is a conservative man and would be the last to make a positive conclusion in a matter of this sort. What he found is very interesting.

The investigations show that the breathing capacity of delinquents is distinctly less than in normal women. In women over thirty years of age, the delinquents have a chest expansion of three inches, as against four inches for normal women. Under thirty the normal women have an expansion of four and a half inches, at least a half inch more than the delinquents possess.

I am all the time preaching to you the importance of deep breathing. I have done this because of what it means to your physical well-being. I have not thought of its relationship to morals.

It is easy to see, however, there may be a lot in Dr. Hoffman's idea. Unless the brain is well irrigated with pure blood it can not operate as it should.

The functioning of the body and the proper functioning of all the vital organs are dependent on the purity of the blood supply. The blood can not be rich and capable unless the lungs give it an abundance of oxygen.

It is reasonable to believe, then, that delinquency which depends on wrong operations of the mind or on wrong impulses due to perverted stimulation of certain organs, might well come from shallow breathing. Do have the quantities of oxygen essential to normal blood supply and proper flow of nerve energy there must be the fullest use of the breathing machinery.

The chest expansion is an index of the degree of lung development. If there is not free expansion there is no likelihood of obtaining the necessary oxygen. A healthy mind and a clear brain depend on an abundance of fresh air. You must take into your lungs an abundance of oxygen with every breath.

You will find your general health improved if you follow these suggestions. Keep deep, good digestion and a happy disposition will result.

Begin today to breathe properly.

MOTORIST BEHAVIOR.

In connection with the educational campaign to teach pedestrians to obey the rights and crossing policemen it behooves the motorist to turn over a new leaf in his driving behavior at intersections. The campaign for walkers, which is now under way and which, if the commissioners heed the petitions of organizations and the traffic bureau, will be followed by strict enforcement of the existing regulation relating to pedestrians, stresses again the fact that if motorists respect the right of the walkers they must themselves act the part.

There can be no possible fairness in expecting the much-harassed pedestrian to wait patiently for the green light before setting out across an intersection and then to be threatened by drivers who pass the painted white line or start up on the caution signal. Likewise there can be no logical argument for pedestrian control if right-turning drivers simply ignore those walking when they swing around the corner directly into the stream of pedestrians proceeding on the green light.

These practices, unfortunately, are prevalent in Washington today and no headway can be expected in securing the good will and aid of the walker for the betterment of traffic conditions while they continue. Pedestrian control is in force in a good many cities of the country. It is not designed and has not shown itself to be a regulation to give the motorist a monopoly of the streets. On the contrary, motorist and pedestrian work in harmony for the protection of both and for the good of the majority. The motorist is given clear way on the green or go signal, while the walker, in return, is granted full reciprocal privileges.

There are many who argue that pedestrians should be free from regulation and that they should be permitted unrestricted use of the street because they are constantly in peril. In fact one facetious writer to the Star inquired if a pedestrian death in the district should be considered "natural or accidental." The fact remains, however, that the streets of all large cities are becoming so congested that no one class of street user, while on the street, should be granted entire freedom.

Sidewalks are furnished for walkers and streets for fast-moving traffic. All street traffic is controlled and it logically follows that when the walker deserts the sidewalk for the street, he, too, should come under the general control. It is for his own protection and for the frictionless movement of traffic.

Naturally the responsibility for safety is greater upon the motorist than upon the walker. The former is driving a potentially dangerous vehicle, against which the latter is defenseless. Accordingly, the motorist must exercise extreme care. He must stop and "stay stopped" until the signal flashes green; he must not encroach upon pedestrian domain, and when he does encroach in making a right turn he must do so courteously, slowly and with scrupulous regard for the fact that in that particular maneuver his rights are entirely subordinated to those of the pedestrian.

When this is done and when pedestrians come to the realization that the exigencies of present conditions demand that every street user be regulated, then the national capital will be a better place in which to live, walk and drive.—Washington Star.

AGAIN MACHADO.

General Machado Y Morales again has been installed as president of Cuba, our sugar-sweet neighbor in the summer seas near to our shores. He went up to his nation's new $16,000,000 capitol in Havana with the cheers of thousands of his countrymen singing in his ears.

Machado begins his second term, rising from humble life, after a strenuous and illustrious career as warrior and politician. He is a good friend of the United States. He has been a visit us. He seems popular with his people. He will serve for six years more, if nothing shall happen to him.

Machado is one of Cuba's outstanding leaders, both in military, business and social life. Like Coolidge, he is not much given to talk. He made no inaugural speech, having previously addressed the congress. He is for improvement, for economy and education. He brought down the price of sugar to its present low level. He has dedicated himself to his country and his people.

Cuba might have done a much worse thing than to continue Machado Y Morales in office.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, said the Lord of hosts. Prayer.—O God of mercy, God of might, in love and pity inspire, teach us, as ever in Thy sight to live our life to Thee.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, May 25.—Many of the finest characters in a small town are those who seem to have been ennobled by chronic poverty. Yet in New York humanity is often soured by the same penury. The attitude becomes sneering. They mount the soap box and snarl.

I have no particular reverence for wealth, but the most considerate and agreeable people in the metropolis are frequently the very rich. They should, of course, be more tolerant and understanding. And there is nothing at all thrilling in being with the underdogs.

Yet there is something admirably sporting in making the best of it. Oddly enough in the metropolis the grouchy folk are often those who depend largely for their livelihood upon the gratuities bestowed by the public their service.

I refer especially to facillities of waiters, hat checkers, taxicab drivers and even policemen. Not once was I ever snubbed by a high-salaried executive to whom I meant nothing, but innumerable times have I received discourtesy from those to whom I meant at least a tip.

As an assignment reporter in earlier days here my door bell pulled at the mansions of my card in elaborate executive offices were never slighted, but in more humble surroundings I have had doors slammed in my face when on the most inoffensive errands. Voice: Perhaps stealing a picture.

I have been rudely pushed off the curb on the Bowery, but never on Park avenue. The glitter of wealth in New York seems to make class consciousness more pronounced. One of the outstanding charms of the smaller city is in its lack of obsequence to riches.

In the metropolis one is always conscious of the shabby slave. In the one-ring town it means nothing wasteful and may be worn by the leading banker as well as the lowest occupant of a tin can shanty on the city dump.

A leading catch-and-lead dancer indulges such violent gymnastics in her nightly diodes she is carried to her waiting car in a state of complete exhaustion. A neat press yarn, but the sort that inspires only an editorial yawn.

Many Broadway stage and cabaret clowns have press agents who try to exploit a deep meaning to their act. Behind the mimic's laugh is the broken heart and all that pile. Any number give a cock-eyed liability to a robust evening, but their "meaning" has no more significance than slapstick wham on the nit spot. They are a little above the average liams doing their stuff and what an extraordinary lucky break they receive so much money for it!

Capital is being raised for a new experiment in the theater—a structure fashioned after the plans of the Venetian opera-houses and which will present only operettas of American composers. Otto Kahn, it is rumored, will pay the bill. One of these days they should put up a new opera-house or theater on some one else's check for a change.

Fashionable johnnies popping over from London the past few weeks feature pantaloons with a single and extraordinarily deep pleat. And the hat brim tipped way down in the back—like Mayor Walker off for Palm Beach—is also good crick!

The passing of society's movie theater—the Plaza—in the "Fashionable Fifties" was an illustration of how ticking the eye of the rich paid. It was always crowded. The manager, with a tongue in his cheek, presented curse-you-Roger Flemmingway films go buck tooth debutantes and their translucent-eared boy friends could razz the players. This ballooned their feeling of smoothness and maintained a steady line at the box office.

Nothing is more annoying than the nobility of the intelligentsia. The new rich in their striving are amusing and oftentimes pathetic. But for those with only a single and feeble talent or perhaps a papa with money in a lane a superiority beyond their gifts is idon'tknowwhat!

"Noh Hail," San Francisco telegraphs: "Three of your group lately needed explanations." I just tell 'em for this price. The blue prints cost extra.—Copyright, 1929, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Was Joshua There?

BY GARRETT P. BERVILLE.

"I'm getting dizzy," said the Earth, "and I'm going to stop turning around."

"Oh, don't do that!" cried the Ocean, and the Atmosphere. "Think what will become of us."

"No matter about you. I stop," said the Earth in a relentless tone.

"But think of all the people! And the big buildings!"

"Hang the people and the big buildings. They are a burden to me. I'm overwhelmed with their bones."

"But for mercy's sake we can't hang on if you stop."

"What of that. I've got this hunch, and I am going to do it."

"Then if you must stop, stop slowly. On please!"

"No!" thundered the Earth, "I'll stop suddenly in the millionth part of a second. I am going to stop right now!"

There was a grinding, screeching, screaming, racking and roaring noise, that filled the Earth and the sky, and a shock that made the welkin tremble, while all the universe appeared to be collapsing.

The air tore away eastward in rags and tatters of the lacerated atmosphere, blowing off mountain pinacles like drifting chimneys, ripping up great forests by the roots, and sweeping giant trees through the sky as if they were bits of straw from a grain field. A huge iron gasometer rolled, leaped and thundered over broken houses and wrecked streets until it smashed itself against a granite precipice. The whole dome of the sky was filled with flying wild gyrating objects, of every kind and size, among which were mingled human beings and animals.

But the ocean! Along the Atlantic coast the waters fled eastward and disclosed the continental shelf and the dark verge of the awful abyss beyond it. On the Pacific side the ocean heaved upon the land, drowned the cities, plains and valleys and assailed the flanks of the mountains with climbing billows and spouts of foam that dared the peaks. The British Isles, Europe, Africa were swept over. The Mediterranean burst into a state of complete exhaustion. A neat press yarn, but the sort that inspires only an editorial yawn.

Inertia, the most restless giant of the material cosmos was unchained, and ragged unchecked. All the roaring winds were free, and "all the mighty floods were out."

And what of the groaning, creaking, rending Earth itself? The inertial Goliath held that, too, in his crushing grasp. The stress and strain of the suddenly arrested force of rotation was felt to the quivering center. Strata cracked, yielded, crumbled. Earthquakes darted like neuragic spasms through all the veins of the planet. On the surface, mountains tumbled under the recoil. Gushes of fire issued from the strained interior. Floods of lava poured out as in the days of the planet's plutonic youth.

"Oh, what have I done," cried the tortured Earth. "What drunken folly made me stop? Why did I not know the fearful force that was sleeping in my smooth rotation? Why did I not nature teach me to yield it up harmlessly, slowly developing its matchless power for the betterment of all these intellectual beings who dwell with me so long, but whom I have now recklessly destroyed. I know I am but a slag, a wreck, like by long-lost child, the Moon!"

But I saw in my dream that over the center of the Atlantic an airplane was smoothly circling in a still atmosphere at a great height, when the catastrophe occurred. Suddenly its pilot became aware of a terrible commotion below him. The surface of the ocean piled itself in immense billows chasing one another eastward. There was a repercussion upon the air about him, and currents and whirlwinds formed, which called upon all his skill and judgment to enable him to live through the sudden storm. But the air did not leap upon him as it had done upon the suddenly arrested surface of the solid earth. He rode along with its general moment of rotation as he had been doing before the globe beneath stopped turning. If he had been in contact with the globe starting its momentary, he, too, would have been hurled eastward with destructive force when the rotation stopped. But he was in contact with nothing but the enveloping air, whose momentum he already shared. Thus only a Joshua could have had a chance of escape.—Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, has a singular ability to face facts and size up a situation without prejudice. Of course no one is without prejudice, but Dr. Frank seems to have less than most of us. Asked to discuss newspapers and the schools the other day he said some truthful things that may have disappointed his hearers. He said: "Before we can think straight about the relations of the press to the school, we must recognize two very plain facts about the press: 1. It is the function of a newspaper to handle news, not to convert itself into a preaching agency in behalf of even the best cause, and, 2. a newspaper and the press in general is a business institution with a legitimate desire to show a handsome profit at the end of the year."

"I am not suggesting the many things that reformers would like to have the press do; I am trying honestly to recognize what the press is. And, personally, I think it will do little good to quarrel with these two facts that characterize the press."

"If the press is to do more towards interpreting the schools to the public, the primary responsibility for bringing that happy event about will rest in the practical working out of things, not with the press, but with the schools. If school men want more matter about schools in the press, school men must do more things that have legitimate news value in the minds of the editors."

"Can the states afford to educate their children?" This question, asked by the National Education association is easily answered. To take the state of Maryland, for example—and almost any other state would be as well—more than $86,000,000 was spent for automobiles and luxuries in one year compared with less than $27,000,000 for schools. Figures taken from all over the United States show that we spend enormously for ice-cream, candy, sporting goods, jewelry, and motor cars, and spend quite conservatively on our schools.

But there is an exceedingly bright side to the school story in America. Do you realize what has happened in ten years? In 1917 the average salary of teachers was $635. Today it is $1,300. Ten years ago the enrollment in high schools was 1,600,000. Today it is 4,000,000. Ten years ago the expenditure for public education was three-quarters of a billion dollars. Today it is $2,000,000,000.

Somewhere has said that the man who wraps up "suspicion" in packages and sells them for a dollar each can get richer than Henry Ford. Thousands of young men will come out of college in a few weeks. They will be "smart enough" to take a fair share of the money that is being poured into the schools. They will have a sort of education, but a large number of them will lack gumption, which is a combination of get-up-and-go and stick-to-it-iveness.

MARKET TAKING ON SUMMER PRODUCTS

Arrival of Season's First Watermelons Is Feature Here This Week

Watermelons are here, the first in the city, but at a price almost prohibitive. Yet local grocers say the first carload always brings a premium. A 35-pound melon was offered this week for $1.50 each, the first of the year.

They come from Florida. That state will furnish the melons for some time yet, but at prices that will show marked declines in the course of a few days, grocers say.

Strawberries closed the week with prices ranging from 12½ cents to 20 cents a quart. The 20-cent variety comes from the Kentucky patches, where the best of berries are now grown. The cheaper grades come from the "glad" of the crop in Tennessee and Arkansas. Heavy acreage and early picking produce berries not of the highest quality but at a price that will permit earning. The better berries from this crop sell at 15 cents and 18 cents a quart.

Wholesale apples, the last of last fall's crop, are now selling two pounds for 23 cents, there being no demand for bushel quantities. The apple market will be enlarged by the addition of Transparent apples from West Virginia, possibly within the next week. The first Transparents are already on the market, grocers say, but are green and small.

All green vegetables were down a cent or two at the close of the week, the southern markets having furnished a good supply of nearly every item used on local markets. The prices will receive another substantial cut with the appearance of local produce.

Grapefruit made a two-cent gain on nearly every size, with the exception of the small cheaper grades. Another crop will soon be under way but prices are yet indefinite. The cheaper grapefruit is now slightly sprouty.

Among some of the green and fresh vegetable price changes noticed this week is the drop of tomatoes from their former price of 20 cents to a range of 18 to 25 cents. A-paragus dropped from 25 cents to 23 cents a bunch; cucumbers dropped from prices of 10 and 20 cents to 15 cents for better grades.

Most prices were steady during the week, about the only noticeable item was cent flour, which stands near the top of the price list at 70 cents a pound. Other items were steady. Eggs continued at 33 cents a dozen as the week closed.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR WEEK $15,485

Six Dwellings Included in List Recorded at City Clerk's Office

Construction work in Marion, for which building permits were taken out this week, is estimated to cost $15,485, according to reports from the office of City Clerk S. H. Keller.

There were 14 permits issued by Clerk Keller, ranging from a $4,000 lumberhouse being constructed by the Pure Oil Co. on North State st. to a $75 garage.

Six dwellings were begun during the week, ranging in estimated cost from $1,000 to $3,500. Permits for the construction of five garages were issued, ranging in approximate cost from $75 to $100.

LEASES SIGNED

Largest Air Passenger Depot Located in Chicago

Passenger airlines flying a daily total of 150,000 miles, or six times around the world, and including 55 per cent of all the airlines in America, have signed contracts and leases to operate the largest consolidated air passenger ticket office and passenger depot in America. These lines, all of them members of the Chicago Air Traffic association, also completed arrangements to centralize their operating headquarters in office spaces adjoining and in the air passenger depot, a move which definitely gives Chicago the greatest centralization of air travel executive in the world.

The depot will be in the Monroe St. arcade of the Palmer House, and will occupy in part the space now in use by the airlines, and opened last year as the first passenger bureau for air travelers on the American continent. Six new air lines will be augmented in the depot, following their admission as members of the Chicago Air Traffic association.

CLEARINGS DROP

Marked Decrease Shown in Week's Bank Transactions

A drop of $109,362.75 from last week's total was seen in the aggregate bank clearings for this week, ending with Thursday's clearing. This week's total reached $431,438.55, while a week previous the figure was $540,801.30, reports from the National City Bank & Trust Co., clearing house, bank.

This week the clearings ranged from $100,007.37 on Monday to $51,551.43 on Wednesday, the latter day now being half-holiday.

RECORDS MADE

Efficiency Marks Set in Month's Railway Operations

New efficiency records since 1920 were reported by the Class 1 steam railroads for the month of February, 1929, in eight out of ten selected items of freight service operating averages, according to a report just issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The following new records were reported: net ton-miles per mile of road per day, 6,038; gross tonload (excluding locomotives), 1,700 tons; net tonload, 770 tons; gross ton-miles per train-hour (excluding locomotives), 22,920; net ton-miles per car-day, 551; average carload, 27.3 tons; car-miles per car day, 32 1/2; and per cent of loaded cars to total, 62.5.

In the matter of number of cars per train and pounds of coal per 1,000 gross ton-miles, better records were made for the month of February in individual years previous to 1929.

For the first two months this year new records were reported in six out of the ten selected items, as follows: gross tonload (excluding locomotives); net tonload; gross ton-miles per train-hour (excluding locomotives); net ton-miles per car-day; car-miles per car-day; and cars per train (including empties).

"Realtor" Defined by Law in Oregon

The correct use of the term "Realtor" has been recognized in a law in the state of Oregon. Heretofore court decisions and real estate commissions have upheld the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the claim of exclusive right to the term to mean an active member of a constituent board, but Oregon is the first state to define the term in a law.

At its latest session the Oregon legislature passed revisions to the state real estate license act in order to give the public better protection against irresponsible and incompetent brokers. Section 27 of the revised license law definitely states that use of the term "Realtor" by one not a member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards may be cause for suspension, cancellation or revocation of license to act as real estate broker or salesman in the state of Oregon. The revised act is effective Jan. 1, 1930.

High School Seniors Score Second Success in "Queen's Husband"

The second of a long series of on "The Queen's Husband" given by the senior class of Marion High school last night at the Grand theater was better than the first, if a comparison could be made.

Parts in the play had been studied with renewed energy during the week and the entire cast was literally up to the hilt in making the play a fitting finale in the dramatic history of the class of '29.

At the end of the first act, Miss Jane Guthrie was called to the stage and presented flowers to the queen, Miss L. E. Guthrie, from her father, Lowell H. Guthrie of Jacksonville, Ill. Miss L. E. Guthrie, who is a highly respected member of the Marion community, was the first of a large number of friends who presented flowers to the queen.

The queen, Miss L. E. Guthrie, was then crowned by the senior class and the play was continued.

The play was a success and the entire cast was well received by the audience.

At the end of the play, the senior class presented a large number of flowers to the queen, Miss L. E. Guthrie.

WHEN you see the number of Chrysler cars in the hands of bankers, lawyers, doctors, manufacturers, engineers, chemists, judges and other leaders of American life everywhere, you realize more than ever that you travel in the best of company when you own and drive a Chrysler.

It means something definite when thousands of people who formerly owned and drove far more expensive cars are now driving Chryslers by preference.

Today there is a general recognition of the fact that Chrysler has established long-established standards.

By scientific distribution of car weight, by new utilization of fuel, by advanced carburetion and correctly applied thermodynamics, Chrysler engineering has created a new performance.

A perfectly-balanced chassis, with buoyant vanadium springs anchored in moulded blocks of live rubber instead of ordinary metal shackles, supplemented by hydraulic shock absorbers, means an entirely new and delightful comfort in riding.
